

It's not all the time... but it affects my health: I don't sleep well, I put on weight, my body doesn't feel good, and so on.

Okay.

So if I understand correctly, there's a part of you that makes you eat, and another that's worried about the consequences for your health, that judges you and makes you feel guilty, is that right Porco?

When I eat, I'm in a state where I can't think straight. It's compulsive.

I'm aware of it, but I can't help myself.

(Hmm, I think we're dealing with a firefighter here.)

